

About Private Markets Access Through Templum

SoFi Securities, LLC (“SoFi Invest”) has a referral arrangement with Templum Markets (“Templum”), allowing eligible SoFi Invest members to access certain special purpose vehicles (“SPVs”) and private investment funds through Templum. Templum charges a purchase fee of up to 6% for SPVs and up to 3.5% for funds. In this arrangement, Templum compensates SoFi Invest with 20-50% of the purchase fees Templum charges to SoFi Invest members who open a Templum account and invest through Templum. SoFi Invest is not affiliated with Templum and makes no endorsement of Templum's products or services, but the compensation that SoFi Invest receives from Templum is a conflict of interest and creates an incentive for SoFi Invest to refer its members to Templum.

Investors should carefully review the investment objectives, risks, charges, and expenses of any investment vehicle before investing. This information is available in the private offering memoranda or prospectus provided by Templum. Alternative investments may not be suitable for all investors and carry unique risks, including:

Lack of Liquidity: SPVs and private funds are typically illiquid, meaning you may not be able to easily sell or redeem your investment until a potential liquidity event, like an acquisition or IPO.

Risk of Loss: These investments often involve high-risk assets, such as startups or specialized assets, which can result in substantial losses, including total loss of capital. Investments are not guaranteed and should only be considered if you can afford the risk.

Limited Information: SPVs and private funds may invest in assets with minimal track records or established markets, making fair valuation challenging.

Managerial Risks: The performance of these investments relies on fund managers' skills and experience. Poor decisions, operational issues, or conflicts of interest could negatively affect returns.

Potential Conflicts of Interest: Fund managers or affiliates may have financial interests in the underlying assets or receive performance-based compensation, potentially encouraging greater risk-taking.

Investors should consider their personal circumstances and review all available information, including the offering materials, before investing. This disclosure does not constitute a recommendation of Templum, or a recommendation to buy, sell, or hold any security or endorse any specific investment strategy.
